Sempony cise that you doarly love.
Is weary, like me, because you're away.
Sometimes I see her lips tremble and move.
And I seem to know what they're going to say;
And every day, and all the long day,
I long to cry, "Oh, Mamma, mamma,
When will Papa come back again." But before I can say it I see the pain Creeping on her white white check, As the sweet and sunshine creeps up the white

And then I am sorry, and fear to speak; And slowly the pain goes out of her cherk, As the and sweet sunshine goes from the wall Oh, I wish I were grown up wise and tall, That I might throw my arms round her neck And say, "Dear Mamma, oh, what is it all That I see and see, and do not see, In your white white face all the livelong day? But she hides her griet from a child like me. When will you come back sgalu, Papa, Papa!
